THE Democrats are wild. They not only threw rotten eggs at Mr. Carlisle, whom they have often honored, but take keen delight in burning an American flag in Missouri. Is this the patriotism they talk about, or is it the anarchy with which they are charged?

WHEN you read that Mark Hanna is buying votes by the thousand, and that all chartered comporations are compelling their men to support McKinley under penalty of dismissal, just remember that these stories emanate from a powerful trust, whose candidate and representative is the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, politician.

It is the duty of every Republican to keep up the battle to the end. The last wail of the Bryanites, in which they charge Mark Hanna and other Republican leaders with buying with cash enough votes to carry all the doubtful states, is a tacit acknowledgment of defeat. They say in every way but by the words that their cause is lost, and their only hope is to prevent total annihilation. And here is where every Republican can help. Keep the principles of Republicanism well to the front. Attack the ranks of silver at every point. Do not yield an inch, but rather advance every day of the few days left, and carry the banner of McKinley, protection and honest money into the very ranks of the foe. There is no time like the present, and a strong, steady movement will inflict severe defeat, and forever crush out the life of those pernicious principles found in the platform upon which the Bryanites stand. McKinley will win, and win by a handsome majority, but if every Republican does his full duty we will not again be endangered

Opening an envelope by pulling a string is the latest labor saving device. Like all simple contrivances, it seems queer no one thought of it before, but that doesn't impair its usefulness.

Any envelope can be equipped with the opener. An ordinary piece of thread is inserted at the top of the flap, and when the fold is made the thread projects from one end. To open the envelope all that is necessary to do is to pull back the thread.

This envelope opener is a New York invention, and it promises to be very opular with the busy business man.

The sermon did not touch upon any of the political issues, and barring the usual prayer for the welfare of those in high ffices no one would have known that a man of national reputation helped to make up the congregation.

After the sermon an informal recep-tion was held from the pew which Mr. Bryan had occupied, and as soon as possible the nominee was taken out a side door and put into a carriage and driven rapidly away. Mr. Bryan spent the day at the home of Dr. Hiram J. Jones, where he lived during his residence in this city. There were few callers, but outside the house a large crowd gathered and stared at the few visitors who were admitted to grasp the hand and exchange compliments of the day with the candidate

an international syndicate of capitalists is the greatest business enterprise now on foot in the entire world. The Americans at the head of the enterprise are James Ross and a Mr. MacKenzie of Montreal. A number of Americans on this side of the Canadian line, who have become wealthy as street railroad operators, are interested; also a number of English, German and Dutch bankers, as well as the great house of Rothschilds. These gentlemen find the street railways of Europe where those in America were ten years ago. They see abandant opportunity to make a great deal of money by bringing them, and deal of money by bringing them up to the present American standard. They not only have the undergound railways of London in view, but are prepared to operate in Berlin, Paris and other large European cities. The syndicate in fact has already gained possession of the street railway system of Birmingham, England, and is operating it. The

EAST LIVERPOOL and the rest of Columbiana county will one week from tomorrow register upon the side of good business sense

THE chances of General Sherwood ever representing this district in congress grow less as the days go by. It is true he was a soldier, but the veterans want no soldier who stands on the Chicago platfrom to represent them.

THE Democrats are wild. They not only threw rotten eggs at Mr. Carlisle, whom they have often honored, but take keen delight in burning an American flag in Missouri. Is this the patriotism they talk about, or is it the anarchy with which they are charged?

WHEN you read that Mark Hanna is buying votes by the thousand, and that all chartered comporations are compelling their men to support McKinley under penalty of dismissal, just remember that these stories emanate from a powerful trust, whose candidate and representative is the Hon. William Jennings Bryan, politician.

TO THE LAST.

It is the duty of every Republican to keep up the battle to the end. The last wail of the Bryanites, in which they charge Mark Hanna and other Republican leaders with buying with cash enough votes to carry all the doubtful states, is a tacit acknowledgment of defeat. They say in every way but by the words that their cause is lost, and their only hope is to prevent total annihilation. And here is where every Republican can help. Keep the principles of Republicanism well to the front. Attack the ranks of silver at every point. Do not yield an inch, but rather advance every day of the few days left, and carry the banner of McKinley, protection and honest money into the very ranks of the foe. There is no time like the present, and a strong, steady movement will inflict severe defeat, and forever crush out the life of those pernicious principles found in the platform upon which the Bryanites stand. McKinley will win, and win by a handsome majority, but if every Republican does his full duty we will not again be endangered by the serpent which has for months been threatening the foundations of our country.

The Newest Envelope.

Any envelope can be equipped with the opener. An ordinary piece of thread is inserted at the top of the flap, and when the fold is made the thread projects from one end. To open the envelope all that is necessary to do is to pull back the thread.

This envelope opener is a New York invention, and it promises to be very opular with the busy business man.

Free silver in Mexico is a great instiution. Wages averaging 25 cents among all kinds of workingmen are a great institution, too-for Mexico. They are not desirable enough, however, in American eyes, to be made part and parcel of our civilization.

The ser-mon did not touch upon any of the political issues, and barring the prayer for the welfare of those in high offices no one would have known that a man of national reputation helped to make up the congregation.

After the sermon an informal reception was held from the pew which Mr. Bryan had occupied, and as soon as possible the nominee was taken out a side door and put into a carriage and driven rapidly away. Mr. Bryan spent the day at the home of Dr. Hiram J. Jones, where he lived during his residence in this city. SAVED BY THE PREACHER Prevented a Papic In a Chicago Church During a Fire.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—By rare presence of mind the Rev. Dr. James Villa Blake saved his congregation from panic and possible awful results from a fire which broke out just as the morning service was beginning at the Third Unitarian thurch Sunday and which destroyed the main part of the building.

When the pastor took his place in the pulpit his attention was drawn to smoke in the lobby leading to the Sunday school room. He remained standing until the organist had ceased playing, and then requested the congrega-tion to retire quietly by the rear exits. His manner so reassured those assem-bled that a panic was averted. The church was almost entirely destroyed. The loss is placed at $25,000

A Parade In New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.-Probably the most gorgeous marine spectacle as well as the most imposing political demon-stration that has ever been witnessed in the United States was the parade of vessels in New York harbor Saturday night under the auspices of the Shipping and Industrial Sound Money asso-ciation of the port of New York. The parade was a demonstration on the part of the business men and others who favor the gold standard and many weeks had been devoted to the preparations for the event. Nearly 300 vessels were in line. Vice Presidential Candidate Hobart reviewed the parade.

The Sultan Arming Musselmen-European Interference Likely.

LONDON, Oct. 26 .- The levying of a tax to arm the Musselmen and the extensive purchase of arms during the week has caused a feeling of vague uneasiness and alarm. The palace hopes to distract the attention of the Moslems in Constantinople from its own mis deeds by holding out a prospect of un limited loot.

Reports from all parts of Turkey point to the complete dislocation of the administrative machine and an absence of all justice and public security. The envoys have sent a collective note to the porte of the strongest character in view of the critical situation. The Speaker, discussing the matter,

The London American says that each year, at the feast of St. Michael, he was to 'make tender of a linen tablecloth worth 3 English shillings." As they went to royalty, the ladies of the D'Oyley family took great pride in embroidering the "quitrent cloths," as they were termed, and, in consequence, an art needlework collection of great beauty was accumulated by these annual tributes. They did service for state occasions in William the Norman's house hold, and, very naturally, were called the "D'Oyley linen."—Oxford Times.

ORIGIN OF THE HELLO

INVENTION OF THE TELEPHONE, AS TOLD BY ITS AUTHOR.

Dr. Bell, Like His Father, Was Interested In Efforts to Instruct Deaf Mutes-While Engaged In This Line of Work the Telephone Was Suggested to Hk Mind.

The story of how the telephone came to be invented was told by Dr. Alexander Graham Bell during his attendance on the meeting of the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf, held at Mount Airy. Dr. Bell's father was an elocutionist in England and well known as a corrector of defects in utterance, as his grandfa-ther had also been. His father had devised a method of representing the action of the vocal organs by symbols, similar to those used in chemistry. In like manner letters representing the various organs of speech, with figures attached indicating the positions of those organs, would represent certain sounds or spoken words. A person placing his tongue, teeth, lips and palate in the position indicated by a certain formula would produce a definite sound. The use of such a system for the instruction of deaf mutes was not overlooked by Dr. Bell's father, and experiments were made in a little school in London. Dr. Bell became interested in the subject and developed a method of teaching the deaf to speak. His father had lectured in this country, and in this way the system had come to the knowledge of the deaf and dumb institutions in Boston and of the prominent educators in that city, and in 1871 the board of education invited Dr. Bell to see what he Deaf. He accepted the invitation and put the system in practice there with very great success, and it was introduced in one institution after another throughout the country. Dr. Bell did not at that time believe stand speech by looking at the mouth of the speaker. The mechanism of speech was, he thought, too complicated for that. He therefore set to work to invent an apparatus which would repre sent speech to the eye as it was spoker Judge Young decided to send Nora by throwing a picture of the vibrations apparatus, which, by means of a vibrating diaphram, stretched on a piece of wood divided into two parts, and a series of mirrors produced a band of light with wave effects, according to the sound uttered. The flame was too feeble to be photographed. Dr. Bell then turned his attention to another apparatus, called a phonetograph, in which was stretched a membrane, against which a person spoke and which carried a little pencil over a smoked glass, which made a curved line that could easily be photographed. He made many hundreds of tracings but unfortunately they did not correspond with the flame pictures before described, and he attributed the trouble to the clumsiness of the apparatus. He therefore mapped out changes in the construction of his phonetograph and thought he saw in his draft a rude analogy to the construction of the human ear. Instead of bones actuated by a membrane, as in the ear, he had a lever of wood moved by a membrane. He therefore concluded to modify the shape to correspond with the human ear and went to a distinguished aurist in Bos ton, Clarence A. Blake, who suggested man ear. Dr. Blake got an ear and dis sected it for Dr. Bell so as to expose the membrane and the little bones. The doctor attached a pencil to the bone called latter became very well acquainted with the malleus, moistened the membrane the captain of one of the steamers. One with glycerin and water and construct ed an outer ear. With this, beautiful tracings were made on the smoked glass. The tracings, however, were different from what he had before produced. While he was engaged upon the above line of search at the Institution For the Deaf, he was also developing an invention out of which he expected to make some money-viz, an electrical multiple telegraph, by which he could send many messages simultaneously over one wire. Dr. Bell simplified this apparatus greatly. He noticed that when half a dozen were operating together there was a resultant electrical effect, and that but one sending magnet was neces sary to produce all the sounds. Further consideration convinced him that he could not only send any number of musical tones simultaneously, but sounds of any kind. His familiarity with the nature of speech had taught him that the term "quality of sound" means really a chord of different musical tones having different intensities, and he could conceive how a sound of any kind whatever, even words, might be transjewelry repaired, on short notice and in mitted if one of these reeds could be the most skillful manner, by calling at moved in front of an electro magnet in the resultant way in which the air is moved when a sound is uttered. His experiments in vibrations had taught him the form of the sound waves. The problem was to make a mass of steel vibrate in the way the air does. The problem was in his mind at the time he was making the experiments with the human ear, before described.

The thought suddenly struck him mass between the bones of the ear and the membrane that connected them; that these bones were, relatively to the membrane, very heavy and very massive. Why, then, could not the piece of iron or steel be moved by attaching it to a heavier and stiffer membrane, of necessary to postpone the visit of the the present lephone form. The prob-Trenten potters to McKinley from Sat- lem was solved. It will thus be seen urday until today. It is needless to say the crockery delegation will receive a warm Globe-Democrat.

IT WAS OF THE SNAPPING KIND, AND THEREBY HANGS THIS TALE.

It Opened the Way For a Country Lad to Transaction Which Pleased the Banker.

"I would not have minded John's action on the floor the other day," said a picion when he demanded more margin on certain stocks that I had with him

"It's only his way, Charlie," said a hearer. "He didn't mean to injure you of it."

"Possibly he did not," said the first speaker. "It may have been due to the training that old Dutch banker — gave him and his innate desire to let othing escape. "When he and I were boys," Charlie

continued, "I spent several summers on his father's farm out in Jersey. It was there that he met his partner, and there is a curious little story connected with their first business transaction, one in which he 'did' the old fellow, but at the same time endeared himself to him.

"John and I had been fishing, and among ther things had caught a snapping turtle that weighed about 20 ounds. We were carrying the snapper some tied to a stick, one having hold of each end of it, when we met the banker driving along in a buggy to his summer home.

"Our catch presented a good appearance, and the old fellow stopped to inquire about it, as he had never seen so arge a turtle before except in the marcet. He asked what we were going to do with it, and we told him what deli cious soup it would make. At once he wanted it and offered 50 cents for it. I was for accepting the 50 cents, but not so John. He felt that he had a customer and held out for $1, and he got it.

"Old - was a little afraid of the napper's jaws, but John and I bridled the turtle by passing a bit of fishing line around it and between its jaws and so tied its head well back under its shell. We then received our silver dollar, tossed the snapper under the seat of the old man's buggy, and he drove off nome, but John sat by the roadside. " 'What are you waiting for?' I said.

" 'The snapper,' said John.

" 'Mebbe it is, and mebbe it ain't. Wait a minute and watch the old man, said he

"'What's the matter with having both?' he replied, and tossing me the dollar and telling me to remain where I was he started up the road after the old man, who was afraid to go near his buggy, for the snapper had bitten through its bridle, had nipped the old man's shins and had taken undisputed possession of the buggy.

"He found the old fellow in a state of consternation, swearing at the snapper in the most expressive German at his command and rubbing his shins at the same time.

'What you sell me-de devil;' asked the old man.

"'No, a nice fat, juicy snapper,' said John, and I sold him too cheaply, too. He'll make delicious soup and plenty " 'Donnerwetter! Soup! I'll haf no to take a stick, prod the snapper and jerk him to the ground as soon as he had fastened his jaws upon it. Old Dutchy, as we called him, jumped into his buggy as soon as the snapper reached the ground and drove hurriedly away. "Of course I rejoined John, and we coon had his snappership swinging from our stick. We walked home in tri-

" 'You-going to be a banker! What nonsense!' I exclaimed.

" 'Nonsense or not, it's a fact. The old man tonight asked me to take a position with him. I told him I knew nothing of the business and would be a failure.

"'You pe a failure!' he said. 'You, who haf solt me a schnapper and haf got my tollar and my schnapper! Dot is too funny. You come vit me. I vant you, and some day I put you on de exchange. You judge human nature, and you know animal nature. De bulls and de bears is de place for you.'

Possible Origin of "Dolly."

The word "d'oyly" is used constantly, and yet few know the quaint story of its origin. In the time of William the Norman, Robert d'Oyley was one granted him upon a curious condition. The London American says that each year, at the feast of St. Michael, he was to 'make tender of a linen tablecloth worth 3 English shillings." As they went to royalty, the ladies of the D'Oyley family took great pride in embroidering the "quitrent cloths," as they were termed, and, in consequence, an art needlework collection of great beauty was accumulated by these annual tributes. They did service for state occasions in William the Norman's household, and, very naturally, were called the "D'Oyley linen."—Oxford Times.

The Worcester Gazette tells this story catlery: Having occasion to travel on the Mississippi river occasionally, the day the captain asked Mr. Russell if he would make a knife for him. "Why, yes; what kind of a knife?" was the answer. "I want a good stout handle with a spring in it, so the blade won't give,' explained the captain. "I'd a little rather have the blade ground on both edges. And I don't want one of those crosspieces, or guards, or whatever they call them. I want a knife I can stick into a man and twist it and when I marvels of ingenuity. The company pull it out it won't catch on his blamed galluses."

INVENTION OF THE TELEPHONE, AS TOLD BY ITS AUTHOR.

Dr. Bell, Like His Father, Was Interested In Efforts to Instruct Deaf Mutes - While Engaged In This Line of Work the Telephone Was Suggested to Hk Mind.

The story of how the telephone came to be invented was told by Dr. Alexan-der Graham Bell during his attendance on the meeting of the American Association to Promote the Teaching of Speech to the Deaf, held at Mount Airy. Dr. Bell's father was an elocutionist in England and well known as a corrector of defects in utterance, as his grandfather had also been. His father had devised a method of representing the action of the vocal organs by symbols, similar to those used in chemistry. In like manner letters representing the various organs of speech, with figures attached indicating the positions of those organs, would represent certain sounds or spoken words. A person placing his tongue, teeth, lips and palate in the position indicated by a certain formula would produce a definite sound. The use of such a system for the instruction of deaf mutes was not overlooked by Dr. Bell's father, and experiments were made in a little school in London. Dr. and developed a method of teaching the deaf to speak. His father had lectured in this country, and in this way the system had come to the knowledge of the deaf and dumb institutions in Boston and of the prominent educators in that city, and in 1871 the board of education invited Dr. Bell to see what he could do in the Boston School For the Deaf. He accepted the invitation and put the system in practice there with very great success, and it was introduced in one institution after another throughout the country.

Dr. Bell did not at that time believe it was possible for deaf mutes to understand speech by looking at the mouth of the speaker. The mechanism of speech was, he thought, too complicated for that. He therefore set to work to invent an apparatus which would represent speech to the eye as it was spoken by throwing a picture of the vibrations on the screen. He commenced his experapparatus, which, by means of a vibrating diaphram, stretched on a piece of wood divided into two parts, and a series of mirrors produced a band of light with wave effects, according to the sound uttered. The flame was too feeble to be photographed. Dr. Bell then turned his attention to another apparatus, called a phonetograph, in which was stretched a membrane, against which a person spoke and which carried a little pencil over a smoked glass, which made a curved line that could easily be photographed.

He made many hundreds of tracings. but unfortunately they did not correspond with the flame pictures before described, and he attributed the trouble to the clumsiness of the apparatus. He therefore mapped out changes in the construction of his phonetograph and thought he saw in his draft a rude analogy to the construction of the human ear. Instead of bones actuated by a membrane, as in the ear, he had a lever of wood moved by a membrane. He therefore concluded to modify the shape to correspond with the human ear and went to a distinguished aurist in Boston, Clarence A. Blake, who suggested his experimenting with an actual huon the authority of John E. Russell. man ear. Dr. Blake got an ear and dis ported it for Dr. Bell so as to expose the membrane and the little bones. The doctor attached a pencil to the bone called latter became very well acquainted with the malleus, moistened the membrane the captain of one of the steamers. One with glycerin and water and constructed an outer ear. With this, beautiful tracings were made on the smoked glass. The tracings, however, were different from what he had before produced. While he was engaged upon the above line of wearch at the Institution For the Deaf, he was also developing an invention out of which he expected to make some money—viz, an electrical multi-ple telegraph, by which he could send many messages simultaneously over one wire. Dr. Bell simplified this apparatus greatly. He noticed that when half a dozen were operating together there was a resultant electrical effect, and that but one sending magnet was necessary to produce all the sounds. Further consideration convinced him that he could not only send any number of musical tones simultaneously, but sounds of any kind. His familiarity with the nature of speech had taught him that the term "quality of sound" means really a chord of different musical tones having different intensities, and he could conceive how a sound of any kind whatever, even words, might be transmitted if one of these reeds could be moved in front of an electro magnet in the resultant way in which the air is moved when a sound is uttered. His experiments in vibrations had taught him the form of the sound waves. The problem was to make a mass of steel vibrate in the way the air does. The problem was in his mind at the time he was making the experiments with the human ear, before described. The thought suddenly struck him that there was a great disproportion in mass between the bones of the ear and the membrane that connected them; that these bones were, relatively to the membrane, very heavy and very massive. Why, then, could not the piece of iron or steel be moved by attaching it Through a misunderstanding it was to a heavier and stiffer membrane, of necessary to postpone the visit of the the present . lephone form. The prob-Trenton potters to McKinley from Sat- lem was solved. It will thus be seen urday until today. It is needless to say the that the telephone was the result of two separate lines of thought.-St. Louis

WELL SOLD TURTLE.

IT WAS OF THE SNAPPING KIND, AND THEREBY HANGS THIS TALE.

It Opened the Way For a Country Lad to Wall Street, a Rich Wife and Business Success—Qualities Displayed In a Small Transaction Which Pleased the Banker.

"I would not have minded John's action on the floor the other day," said a broker to a party of friends yesterday, the same time. picion when he demanded more margin on certain stocks that I had with him in a loan.' "It's only his way, Charlie," said a hearer. "He didn't mean to injure you of it."

"Possibly he did not," said the first speaker. "It may have been due to the training that old Dutch banker -gave him and his innate desire to let nothing escape. 'When he and I were boys,' Charlie

continued, "I spent several summers on his father's farm out in Jersey. It was there that he met his partner, and there is a curious little story connected with their first business transaction, one in which he 'did' the old fellow, but at the same time endeared himself to him.

"John and I had been fishing, and among ther things had caught a snapping turtle that weighed about 20 pounds. We were carrying the snapper home tied to a stick, one having hold of each end of it, when we met the banker driving along in a buggy to his sum-

"Our catch presented a good appearance, and the old fellow stopped to inquire about it, as he had never seen so large a turtle before except in the market. He asked what we were going to do with it, and we told him what deli cious soup it would make. At once he wanted it and offered 50 cents for it. I was for accepting the 50 cents, but not so John. He felt that he had a customer and held out for $1, and he got it.

"Old - was a little afraid of the snapper's jaws, but John and I bridled the turtle by passing a bit of fishing line around it and between its jaws and so tied its head well back under its shell. We then received our silver dollar, tossed the snapper under the seat of the old man's buggy, and he drove off with it.

"As he did so I started on toward home, but John sat by the roadside. " 'What are you waiting for?' I said.

" 'The snapper,' said John. "'It's gone," said I.

"'Mebbe it is, and mebbe it ain't. Wait a minute and watch the old man,' "And sure enough, before the old man had gone half a mile we heard him yell and then saw him jump from his buggy.

"John rolled on the grass and laugh ed nearly as loudly as the old man had

"Picking himself up, he said, 'Let's go get our snapper.' "'I'd rather have the dollar,' I said.

" 'What's the matter with having both?' he replied, and tossing me the dollar and telling me to remain where I was he started up the road after the old man, who was afraid to go near his buggy, for the snapper had bitten through its bridle, had nipped the old man's shins and had taken undisputed

possession of the buggy.
"He found the old fellow in a state of consternation, swearing at the snapper in the most expressive German at his command and rubbing his shins at

What you sell me the old man.

"'No, a nice fat, juicy snapper,' said John, and I sold him too cheaply, too. He'll make delicious soup and plenty Alliance

' 'Donnerwetter! Soup! I'll haf no soup! Gif me my tollar and take de brute. " 'I haven't your dollar. Charley has it back there in the road. Take the snapper to him, and I guess he'll give " 'Me! Me take dat eatin ting? 1 vouldn't get into that puggy now for a quarter each vay. Get 'im out and keep the tollar.

"It was like rolling off a log for John to take a stick, prod the snapper and jerk him to the ground as soon as he had fastened his jaws upon it. Old Dutchy, as we called him, jumped into his buggy as soon as the snapper reached the ground and drove hurriedly away.

"Of course I rejoined John, and we coon had his snappership swinging from our stick. We walked home in triumph, with the dollar in one pocket and the snapper, metaphorically, in the other. Our joke was too good to keep, and that night we related it to all who visited the mill.

"The old man bore us no ill will, but still he never wanted to buy any more of our 'schnappers,' although he occasionally stopped to look at them from the seat of his buggy when he met us carrying them home. "John and I were sitting on the mill steps one evening when the old man drove up. He stopped, asked John to ride with him, and together they drove off. They were gone about an hour. That night John said, 'I'm going to be a banker.'

" 'You-going to be a banker! What nonsense!' I exclaimed.

" 'Nonsense or not, it's a fact. The eld man tonight asked me to take a position with him. I told him I knew nothing of the business and would be a failure. "'You pe a failure!' he said. 'You, who haf solt me a schnapper and haf got my tollar and my schnapper! Dot is too funny. You come vit me. I vant you, and some day I put you on de exchange. You judge human nature, and you know animal nature. De bulls and de bears is de place for you.'

"John went with the old man and ever since has had the dollar in one hand and the snapper on the stick in the other. He married the old man's daughter, got into the firm and now owns the whole concern."-New York Times.
